HISTORY

Historical Context Valentine's Day

The history of Valentine's Day:
Valentine's Day is celebrated on February 14th, and is the celebration of love.

In the late Middle Age, Saint Valentine got married, but the Emperor Cláudio II forbade this, because he believed that single men fought better than married ones. So Saint Valentine was arrested and sentenced to death, but became a symbol of love.

While he was imprisoned, people sent him letters saying they still believed in love.

Besides, on February 14th is the Eve of Lupercália, an annual ancient Roman celebration in honor of Juno, God of women and of marriage, in which a march took place to ensure the woman's fertility.

Now we will talk about how valentine's day is celebrated in Japan

In Japan, there is Valentine's Day, February 14th and Valentine's Day (White Day), March 14th. Both dates are marked by the exchange of chocolates.

In February, storefronts and shelves across Japan are filled with boxes of sweets and chocolates of all kinds. No, we're not talking about Easter, we're talking about Valentine's Day. If in Brazil Valentine's Day is celebrated on June 12, in Japan it is celebrated on February 14, and Valentine's Day is the patron saint of lovers.

In Japan, the day is marked by the exchange of chocolates when women present them to their loved ones. This ritual does not just happen between husband and wife. Most women give chocolates to friends, colleagues and family members. This tradition also happens among young people. Girls will give it to their friends at school, even girlfriends and sisters and brothers.

Japanese people are very shy, and on Valentine's Day, girls can show that they feel more for that friend. That's because every piece of chocolate serves a purpose.

Giri choco is the cheapest gift box for colleagues, bosses and ordinary people. But for a boyfriend or suitor, the woman usually buys a honmei choko, that beautiful box, beautifully decorated, filled with special chocolates.

Some Japanese prefer to prepare sweets, cakes and various chocolates at home, as the Japanese consider everything that is handmade (tezukuri) more valuable.

On March 14, people return gifts with white chocolate, which is called "white day" and is considered "Valentine's Day".

Brazilians living in Japan enjoy Valentine's Day and celebrate Valentine's Day in a special way.

Now about the history of valentine's day in egypt

Egypt

Valentine's Day in Egypt is celebrated on two different days.

On February 14th, like most of the world, but also has a date of their own, November 4th.

On both days, loved ones (boyfriends, friends) are expected (almost required) to give gifts to each other. They also go out and express their love for their loved ones. Flowers and chocolate are favorite gifts in Egypt.

Valentine's Day is celebrated mainly by teenagers.

Now let's talk about Valentine's day in england

The 14th of February is celebrated as Valentine's Day. On that date, people not only celebrate their spouses or boyfriends, but also give gifts to the people they love to have in their lives, such as their parents, friends, family and even pets. The most common and most valuable gifts given by the English are handmade sweets and savory items. It is also part of the tradition to make a heart-shaped cake and present it to the loved one that same day. The intention is not to spend a lot of money on the people you love, but to show that you care and enjoy having them in your life, so you dedicate time to preparing a special gift made by yourself for them.

Flowers are also given and their colors can indicate the degree of relationship that one person has with the other. Red roses are given to spouses, boyfriends and girlfriends, while white and yellow roses are given to relatives and acquaintances, and pink roses are given to friends.

VALENTiNES SPEND A DAY! WITH THE ONES YOU
LOVE <3

CONCLUSION

---

All in all valentine's day is very different in all countries, but the meaning reamins the same, and can even be called the day of love.
